TORNADOES SWEEP EIGHT STATES CAUSING MILLIONS IN PROPERTY LOSS: 500 ARE DEAD

GEORGIA, ALABAMA, ILLINOIS, OHIO AND MICHIGAN ARE CHIEF SUFFERERS

SOUTH AND MIDDLE WEST DEVASTATED BY MOST DESTRUCTIVE WINDSTORMS KNOWN IN RECENT YEARS

MILITIA CALLED TO RENDER AID

Tornadoes which swept eight states on Sunday took a toll of approximately 500 lives, destroyed millions of dollars' worth of property and left hundreds of families homeless. The injured are being cared for in temporary buildings. La Grange, Ga., was believed to be the hardest hit by the storm, between 40 and 60 were reported killed there and 300 homeless. West Point, Ga., reported 5 dead and Agricola, Ala., 5 dead. The storm first made its appearance at St. Louis where one was killed. It swept northwest over Ohio, Illinois, Missouri and extended to Wisconsin. Later it reached Michigan. The storm reached the Chicago district near noon just as the crowds were leaving church. Seven were killed at Elston, 7 in Chicago and 14 in Chicago suburbs.

The tornado coming out of the southwest took one life in St. Louis, and swept north to Elgin, Chicago and suburbs. Seven were killed in Chicago and Elgin. Chicago's suburbs Melrose, Maywood, Plainfield and Evanston added fourteen to the death toll. With many cities isolated Michigan reported eight dead today while seventeen were killed in Illinois and one in Wisconsin. Soldiers, reserve militia and former service men today began digging in ruins searching for injured women and children. Work of relief began immediately after the storm and Red Cross workers were sent into the stricken areas.

ATLANTA, GA., March 29—Between fifty and seventy persons were killed and hundreds injured, thousands made homeless and a million dollar property damage was caused by a series of tornadoes which swept parts of Georgia and Alabama late yesterday and last night according to reports received early today. At La Grange, Ga., more than forty were killed, reports said.

CHICAGO, ILL., March 29—Sixty were killed and more than one hundred injured and millions of dollars in property damage was done by a tornado which swept Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, Michigan, Alabama and Indiana yesterday. Indications were that many had been killed in these states. The stricken areas are under martial control, reports today said. Many cities throughout the stricken areas are isolated today. State troops, former service men and home guards were pressed into service yesterday and controlled the cities to protect property.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 29—Between 15 and 25 dead and 100 injured was the estimate placed early today on the loss caused by the tornado which swept the western edge of Ohio yesterday and late last night. Some villages were reported in ruins.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 29—Latest reports from the storm swept districts in Ohio today placed the number of dead at 20. The resumption of communication with the devastated territory it was believed will bring the total higher. Nearly 175 were injured. Property damage was estimated at three million.

CHICAGO, March 29—Heavy loss of life and great property damage was left in the wake of a tornado that swept over Chicago's suburbs today. Reports that filtered in placed the number of dead at 25 and the injured at more than 500. The property damage was estimated from two million to three million dollars. While only partial communication had been established with outlying districts tonight fragmentary details indicated that the storm had swept a belt around Chicago approximately forty miles wide. Towns and villages were left with buildings razed and figures injured. At least ten persons were killed in Melrose Park and Bellwood, where 300 homes were demolished.

The village of Dunning, where the state hospital for the insane is located, reported two dead and 35 injured. Many buildings were wrecked. Wilmet, a suburb in the northeast part of Cook county, reported almost every building razed or damaged. No loss of life was reported. Two companies of militia were sent there to night to guard property and assist the homeless.

Addison Heights a suburb of Chicago, reported five killed and fifty injured. Numerous buildings were carried away including a church.

Elgin, Illinois, some forty miles from Chicago, was cut off from communication early tonight. It was reported six lives had been lost there and a number injured.

Doctors and nurses from Chicago were being rushed into the stricken areas early tonight. It was expected many injured would be rushed to Chicago hospitals.

The tornado came from the southwest and a death-like stillness prevailed for a few seconds, then a blast of wind rent buildings asunder and left a mass of wreckage strewn in its wake. The air was filled with flying debris.

Railroad trains speeding through the wreckage were stalled by the force of the wind and strings of box cars were blown from the rails.

VIRGINIA CHOCOLATE SHOP HAS OPENING

The Virginia Chocolate Shop, which occupies the corner room in the Liberty Theatre building, corner Market and Third streets, was opened to the public for the first time Saturday evening last. The Chocolate Shop is about the nicest place of its kind to be found outside of the larger cities, and we feel safe in saying its equal is not to be found in Central Pennsylvania.

In addition to the hand-omely appointed sales room on the first floor, the cemented basement has been fitted and furnished as a grill or restaurant, and this feature adds immensely to the general attractiveness of the Chocolate Shop.

Both the store proper and grill are fitted up with booths and tables for the accommodation of patrons. A handsome, up-to-date soda fountain and grill occupy the east side of the Chocolate Shop proper, while the opposite is lined with pretty glass display stands or cases containing delicious candies. An elevator or dumb waiter is used to supply grill patrons, in fact the arrangement throughout is a model of neatness, convenience and beauty.

The Chocolate Shop was visited by hundreds of people during all of Saturday night. In fact the place was crowded from the time the doors were opened until long after 11 p. m. The Virginia Chocolate Shop, which is under the management and direction of George W. Johnson, is a valuable addition to Clearfield's business life and deserving of success.

INJURED IN PECULIAR ACCIDENT

Miss Hannah Hughes, of South Second street, a passenger on last night's train on the Pennsylvania was not on the back by broken glass, when an obstruction on the wreck rail on the siding beyond Summit station, sidwiped the passenger train and broke some ten or fifteen windows in one side of the ladies' car on the train. She was not seriously injured.

that place. "A series of two story stone buildings, one of them a bank, was flattened as if made of paper," he said. "I saw the mutilated body of a woman being carried from the debris of her home. I don't know how many were killed in all."

Fire followed in the wake of the storm in a number of villages. At Addison Heights Charles Hansen, his wife and their three children were killed when their home was blown away.

E. W. Elms, superintendent of the Sunday schools at Addison Heights, was holding service in the Baptist church. The church was blown away.

"The body of the church was lifted right up and hurled down in a mass of wreckage a few yards away," Mr. Elms said. "The floor remained on the foundations, leaving the congregation seated, without a roof over their heads or walls around them. Three were injured but nobody was killed."

Albert Walling, of Norwood Park, telephoned to Chicago tonight that hundreds of people were homeless and relief must be sent.

"Our people have lost their homes," he said, "and we must have help. The hurricane came so quickly there was no time to prepare. People were buried in the wreckage of their homes. I do not know yet how many were killed or injured."

An electric car on the Aurora & Plainfield railroad was hurled from the track and landed in a field. A number of passengers were injured. Early reports said many had been killed at Joliet although the damage to property was small.

DUBOIS CONTINUES ITS FIRE RECORD

Shortly before one o'clock this morning the large store occupied by Jos. Mikelonis, on South avenue, was completely destroyed by fire, as well as a dwelling house adjoining the store on the west. Two other houses in the immediate vicinity were damaged to some extent. The store was occupied as a grocery store and meat market and was quite a large establishment. The upper floor was occupied by Mr. Mikelonis as a dwelling and his loss is a heavy one, practically nothing being saved. The dwelling adjoining the store was occupied by Anthony Carnitis and his loss is also heavy, although some of the contents were removed before the flames spread.

As is usually the case with fires on the hill, the water pressure was very weak and it was not until the pumper was put in operation that any effective fire fighting could be done.

Some people who were at the scene reasonably early were of the opinion that the fire was of incendiary origin and there is no known reason for its start.—DuBois Courier.

Three houses were destroyed by fire a couple of nights after the disastrous half-million dollar blaze, which swept the business district at DuBois last week.

Meanwhile the firemen are clamoring for needed fire fighting equipment.

COUDLEY POST-OFFICE ROBBED

The post-office at Coudley was robbed Thursday night last. The post-office is located in the store of Charles Voichet at Frenchville, and the thieves gained entrance by opening the front door with a skeleton key, which was broken off in the lock.

They secured plunder to the amount of about $25 or $30, the loot consisting of about $12.50 in money, several Ingersoll watches and a quantity of cheap rings.

They made no attempt to open the safe in the office, which contained several hundred dollars, with stamps and other valuables.

NAVY RECRUITING OFFICERS HERE

First Class Petty Officers Latiny and Lavine of the Navy Recruiting Service arrived in town this morning for the purpose of examining and enlisting recruits for the U. S. Navy. They will remain in town until Tuesday morning. Enlistments can be made for 2, 3 or 4 years. Many trade schools are now open to recruits. For further information see Recruiting Officer at Jordan's or at the Post-Office. If it is impossible to see the Recruiting Officer, a letter to the Navy Recruiting Station at Williamsport, Pa., will receive immediate attention.

COMMISSIONER FARRELL COMMENDED

On March 3rd last County Commissioner M. L. Farrell, with a good roads delegation, was on his way to Harrisburg, and while traveling over the main line of the Pennsy below Tyrone, one of the brake rods of the car on which he was riding, broke and dropped to the track. As soon as the noise of the bumping brake rod reached his ear, Mr. Farrell, an old railroad, jumped up and seizing the emergency cord, soon had the train stopped and the damage repaired.

He was complimented for his action by the conductor, who noted same in his daily report, and as a result the following letter was sent to Mr. Farrell, a copy of which was also given The Progress for publication by P. R. R. Solicitor J. P. O'Laughlin:

PENNSYLVANIA SYSTEM
EASTERN REGION
PHILADELPHIA
March 23, 1920.

Mr. M. L. Farrell,
County Commissioner,
Clearfield, Pa.

Dear Sir:—
The report of the detention of the "Day Express" from Pittsburgh on the afternoon of March 3, near Shoenberger Station, has just reached my desk. In reading over it, I was particularly impressed with that part which referred to the fact that through your prompt efforts the train was brought to a standstill in the face of what might have resulted in a very serious accident.

Your action on this occasion is worthy of the highest praise, and on behalf of the Management of this Railroad, I wish to extend to you our sincere appreciation of your having taken the step you did for the safety, not only of yourself, but also that of the other passengers who were on this train.

We are endeavoring to the best of our ability to provide an efficient and safe transportation service, and it is very encouraging to our operating employees and officers to know that in this they have the hearty co-operation of the patrons of the railroad.

With kindest regards, and trusting to have the pleasure of sometime meeting you and extending to you personally a word of commendation, I am,

Yours very truly,
(Signed) ELISHA LEE,
Vice President.

MRS. J. WARD LOGAN DIES

Mrs. Jane Chase Logan, wife of J. Ward Logan, of Ogden avenue, died at the Clearfield Hospital about 8 o'clock Saturday evening, March 27, 1920, aged about 46 years. Death was due to cancer, from which the deceased had been an uncompromising sufferer for long weary months.

Mrs. Logan was of the finest type of Christian womanhood, a loving and devoted wife and mother, whose every thought was centered in her home and loved ones. When sickness and suffering, she was always prompt to minister to others where sickness and distress came to any of those within the circle of her neighborly friendliness. A consistent and devout member of the Catholic church, she faced the life to come uncomplaining and unafraid, fortified by all the satisfying rites of her church.

She is survived by her sorrowing husband and six children. She is also survived by her father, one brother, two half-sisters and three half-brothers, (viz: W. A. Chase, T. H. M. Chase, Mrs. J. K. Palmer, Julian, W. A. Jr., and John M. Chase, all of Clearfield).

The funeral will be held from the St. Francis church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment in Calvary cemetery.

Miss Jessie Sheridan who has been visiting her twin sister Mrs. N. J. Schnarrs nee Bessie Sheridan and her aunt Mrs. Orin Poorman left today for her home in Indiana. Miss Sheridan was accompanied by Miss Margaret Wolf.

BITUMINOUS MINERS TO STAY ON JOB APRIL 1ST

REPRESENTATIVES OF OPERATORS AND MINERS IN WAGE CONFERENCE EXPECT TO AGREE ON SCALE

DEMAND 60 PER CENT INCREASE

NEW YORK, March 29—Instructions will be sent to all miners in the bituminous field to remain on the job after April 1, when the present contract expires, John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America said today.

NEW YORK, March 29—Mine operators and mine workers of the central bituminous district were to meet here today in separate session before the opening of the joint conference. John L. Lewis, International President of the United Mine Workers will head the union representatives in the joint conference which will work out a new contract. The majority recommendations of President Wilson's coal commission will be used as a basis for the negotiations. Both the operators and miners are hopeful of an early settlement. The sub-committee of the hard coal operators and mine workers which has been in session here since March 8, will meet again tomorrow. The demands of the mine workers include a 60 per cent wage increase, a eight hour day, six hour day and a five day week.

ANOTHER IRISH LEADER ASSASSINATED

DUBLIN, March 29—Thomas Dwyer was called from his home at Thurles by an armed posse and shot to death. The circumstances of Dwyer's murder were almost identical with those surrounding the murder of James MacCarthy, Sinn Féin leader, who was shot and killed in his bedroom at Thurles Saturday. Dwyer's murder was believed another proof of the belief here that two rival societies were warring.

REPRESENTATIVES OF ORGANIZED LABOR FORM NON-PARTISAN POLITICAL PARTY

The Clearfield Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee of Clearfield county, was organized at a meeting of the representatives of organized labor held in the assembly hall of The Dimeling yesterday.

This meeting was held by direction of the American Federation of Labor and as the result of a movement of a committee composed of T. J. Butler, J. P. Lennon, J. P. Daugherty, Sam Cook and G. B. Stahl, appointed by the Central Traders and Labor Council of DuBois. The purpose of the organization as expressed in the call for the meeting is "to carry into effect labor's political program for the securing of legislation demanded by labor as their right and to defeat the legislators and other aspirants for public office who have been indifferent or worse to the rights of labor and the best interests of the people generally."

When the meeting was called to order at the Dimeling, by Chairman T. J. Butler, there were present one hundred and twelve delegates representing thirty-six local unions throughout the county, while letters from a score of others endorsing the movement, was in the hands of Secretary Stahl.

Following the reading of the call for the meeting, President John Brophy, of District No. 2, U. M. W. of A., was called upon for an address. Mr. Brophy responded and spoke of the necessity for labor to become united as a non-partisan force if the rights of the man who toils would be protected at Harrisburg and Washington. He was followed by Richard Gilbert, Secretary of District No. 2, U. M. W. of A., who spoke along similar lines, and mentioned some of the friends and enemies of labor legislation in State and Nation.

It was decided to ask each member of a labor union to contribute 50 cents for the purpose of furthering the activities of the organization. The meeting was devoid of all bluster and rancor, the delegates being earnest, thinking men who expressed themselves as wanting nothing more than even and just justice between man and man. They feel that some of their low ranking representatives in the past have not been fair to labor and do not propose to vote to return them to such places of responsibility if it is possible to get men more friendly to labor or in favor of justice to every class and walk in life in their places.

Americanism

By
LEONARD WOOD

Interwoven as is the love of liberty with every ligament of your heart, no recommendation of mine is necessary to fortify or confirm your attachment.—
George Washington: Farewell
Address.

GEORGE WASHINGTON took it for granted that the love of liberty was so strong in the hearts of his countrymen that it could not be uprooted. He took it so much for granted that he said that no recommendation of his was necessary to confirm their attachment.

Washington was speaking to all his fellow countrymen. He took no thought with individuals, here, there or elsewhere. There was no one in whose heart the love of liberty was not firmly implanted. It must have been grateful to the first president to be able to believe that his audience of Americans was as one person in patriotic impulse and in affection for the land of his birth or his adoption. Today it still should be taken for granted that all Americans love liberty and are willing to sacrifice their all for its continuance.

As a group of people Americans are sound to the core in their American-ism. They love liberty today as well as they did in the days of Washington, and they are just as ready to make the sacrifices necessary to maintain it.
While Washington did not allow himself even by inference to make it appear that he thought anywhere there might be a break in the line of liberty lovers, he probably knew that even in his day there were Americans who thought that liberty meant license, and that restraint of personal conduct had no place in a republic.

There were such persons in the republic in Washington's day, and they have had a place in the country's life during the terms of every president since Washington. They are with us today, some of them born here and some of them born elsewhere, but all with a feeling based on selfishness, for there is no belief in it, that unbridled freedom should be the lot of every man and woman living under democratic institutions.

It is from the ranks of such men
as these that are recruited the preachers of unrest, the inciters to violence and the actual partakers of violent deeds. Law and order, the Constitution, regard for property rights, and other things sacred to true Americans, have no place in the creed of such as these.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with coated tongue, foul breath or a dull headache; or if your meals sour and ferment, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

Tomorrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to headaches, backaches, bilious attacks, constipation or stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning inside bath.

Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

No preaching services were held in the Methodist church Sunday. On Saturday Rev. Fletcher Biddle was taken suddenly ill and his condition was such that he was unable to deliver his farewell sermon to the congregation to whom he had administered for the year past. The best wishes of many friends will accompany him to his new charge at Renovo. The newly appointed minister, the Rev. J. C. Collins, of Clearfield, is expected to arrive some day during the week and his congregation will be on hand to give him the warm hand-shake of fellowship.

Bethesda Lodge No. 821, I. O. O.
F., elected officers on Saturday evening to serve during the ensuing term: Noble Grand Charles F.
Young; vice-grand, Eli M. Korb;
secretary, Harry S. Brown; treasurer, John A. Dale; trustee, C. S.
Russell. The reports for the past six months showed an increase of membership and despite the unusual amount of sickness by members during the winter, left the lodge in tip-top shape financially.

John Cadman returned home on Saturday from a two weeks sojourn in the city of Erie, where he had been serving as a United States jury-
man.

Boy Scouts to the number of about twenty indulged in their first mountain hike on Saturday. They went out to the hard clay mines taking provisions along with which to cook their supper in true scout style.
They enjoyed their trip immensely and brought home as fruits of their journey bunches of sassafras.

The Pythian Order in Curwenville has stood many years for the highest ideals in American citizenship, patriotic devotion to the country and loyalty to the civil welfare of the community. During the years that the Pythias lodge has been operated in this town, its Castle Hall has been the meeting place of men inspired to perform a service for their fellowmen and to aid in all that would tend toward the development of a well regulated community.

To be a Pythian in Curwensville means that you are alive to the social welfare of the community, loyal of the community, that you are loyal to the fraternal conception of life and that you have enlisted in the cause of the development of brotherhood and fraternal fellowship of men. Perhaps no other fraternal society has performed a greater service to the community than has the Knights of Pythias during the last few years. A number greater than 720,000 men of the United States and Canada are members of the order.
More than 60,000 young men of the order crossed the seas or were ready for embarkation when the armistice was signed. The Pythian order was the first to write into its ritual the flag ceremony; it was the first American fraternity to enforce the sale of rituals printed in English; it was the first to disbar from the membership men engaged in the liquor traffic. It has made war on all things not safe and sane and does everything possible for making the world better and brighter for mankind.
The war record of the members of this order is second to none. Besides sending a large number of members into the service, those who remained at home, aided by their wives, mothers and sisters, contributed much to building up the morale of the community and in supplying the needs of the government at a time when the service of every citizen was demanded. The order has several auxiliaries connected with it one of which is the Uniform Rank which gave 10,000 men and officers in the world war; the Knights of Khorassan, the "playground of Py-thianism," and the Pythian Sisters with over 200,000 members, whose war record and altruistic work has made the organization one of the most effective woman's fraternities in America. In this spirit has the order been moulded. In every relation and from every viewpoint, Py-thianism is practical, elevating and consistently progressive.

Members of the New York legislature are preparing for more trouble than even Russia has at the present time. They propose to amend the constitution to prevent the election of socialists to any state office, a proposition that is unconstitutional and contrary to the ethics of the American form of government. The proposition is entirely un-American, and, hence, totally wrong. The same principle might be applied to Republicans or Democrats.

The errors of socialism lie in affiliation with foreign or domestic organizations that have for their object the overthrow of existing governments by force if necessary, and in adopting such ideas, with a view to their execution, they become enemies of the government and the people. Wise, just and equitable laws and an honest administration of government will accomplish more than force in the destruction of socialism.

The women of the entire world are clamoring for recognition of their rights as equal partners with men in the administration of government. They insist upon exercising the right of suffrage, and states and nations are yielding to their demands. In America, 35 states have ratified the Women Suffrage amendment to the federal constitution. Only one more is needed to emancipate the women, and, as the fight narrows down to an almost certainty that the women will carry their point the fight becomes more vigorous, the resistance stronger and the status of the cause of the women of America more critical, but they have a fighting chance, and they are putting forth every ounce of feminine energy to win what should have been granted to them years ago without a struggle.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the American National Woman's Suffrage Association will attend the Woman's Suffrage Alliance in Geneva, Switzerland, in June representing 20,000,000 members in this country.

The lofty idea to be considered there, among the Alps, is suffrage for all women of the world.

Capital and big business interests entered the realm of politics long before organized labor became a power. With shame we all admit that there have been periods in our history when our state legislature and our national congress has been dominated entirely, not simply by financial interests, but rather by one or more great corporations. Every man who has lived during the last twenty five years can recall these unfortunate conditions. Even today it is a fact that certain legislators are at Harrisburg through the manipulation of corporate interests and that our national congress is harboring within its doors men who owe a greater allegiance to big interests than to the people generally. Out of such conditions there are certain to grow remedial agencies. A corporate balance of power in our legislative bodies is just as dangerous as a labor balance of power. It is true that labor has its representatives in our legislative halls today but the representation is small and those who are there are unhappily of the bombast variety. A labor party would create a long line of radicals. The A. F. of L., in its desire to win for labor a greater representation on the legislative floor has acted wisely in voting down the idea of a third party and entering the field on a nonpartisan basis. They will accomplish more in the end as their influence will be a balancing factor in the conduct of party affairs as well as in the acts of office holders. No one can deny the right of organized labor to participate in our government in this manner as it is a privilege which has long been enjoyed by capital. Whether or not their efforts will be successful depends much upon the wisdom with which they endorse candidates. All too often a man is blackballed by labor without full consideration of all facts involved. In many instances the endorsement is given to the man of radical views and words but who cannot accomplish anything. If the present Clearfield county organization will wisely consider each candidate and judiciously make their selections it can become a tremendous factor in Clearfield county politics.

RUSSIA OUT OF BALANCE

That Its Industrial Life Has Not Kept Pace With Its Agricultural Has Been Fatal to Country's Prosperity.

Article XVIII.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

Less than 10 per cent of the people of Russia "permanently" live in cities or towns. I write the word "permanently" to call attention to the fact that a number of peasants and villagers come to the cities and towns to work for a part of the year in the industries. They retain their peasant status and their dwellings in the villages. In 1910 there were only forty cities in the Russian empire with a population of from 50,000 to 100,000; only four cities with a population of over 100,000.

Poverty forced upon the Russian people the co-operative spirit. In a great, long strain people can stand up together better than alone. It is the idea of consolation in companionship. It is a principle of mass psychology that a group of men will dare to do a thing to stand a suffering or a danger that no individual in the crowd would undertake alone. The Russians have suffered from the dawn of history, and one of the oldest institutions of Russian life is the Artel. The Artel very much resembles the co-operative society of western Europe, with this difference, that the co-operative society in Europe and America is the outgrowth of an economic trend. In Russia it was the unpremeditated result of necessity. It is the difference between one who is hungry because he is dieting and one who is starving because he is without food.

The workers of Russia have suffered the same slavery the peasants have endured. The minimum wage has been a starvation pay. So when the working men from a province come to a city to work in the textile industries or as carpenters, masons, etc., they arrive in groups of from ten to fifty persons, rent a house, keep a common table, elect an elder of the Artel, to whom each one pays his share of the expense. All over Russia one finds the Artel—in the cities, in the lumber camps, even in the prisons. When a building is to be put up an Artel is organized. When a railroad is being built an Artel is formed. In some instances the Artel resembles a labor union, in that the arrangement of the terms of employment is made by a delegate or committee appointed by the Artel.

Live in Squalor and Misery.

Village life is primitive. The villagers live out of the world. The villages are very small, particularly in the extreme north. The houses are generally cheap wooden shanties. Owing to the great danger of fire, the villages generally cover a large area of ground. The houses are scattered and struggling. The conveniences found even in the American tenements are unknown. There is no chance for cleanliness. They live and sleep in crowded, smoky, unfinished houses. Furniture—they haven't what we call furniture, even what the poorest farm tenant in America would call furnishings. A board for a table, a shakedown for a bed.

Russia's industrial life has always been out of balance with her agricultural life. Notwithstanding her riches of raw material and her great possibilities for a successful industrial life, Russia has continued to be a nation with 81 per cent farmers, 7 or 8 per cent permanently engaged in industry, and 3 or 4 per cent of peasants who devoted part of the time to work in the industries. It has been said repeatedly that the Imperial Russian government from the time of Peter the Great has been unceasing in its efforts for the creation and development of these manufactures. All of the evidence I have examined refutes this statement. There never has been any security to the worker in Russia. The only protection he has had has been his interest in the family allotment. He could go back there and be hungry; in the city starvation was the danger.

The czar put every obstacle in the way of education and of course this prevented the growth of industry.

In 1902 the principal industries in Russia, representing all of the factories throughout the empire of which the annual production was valued at more than $1,000, were textiles, food products, animal products, wood, paper, chemical products, ceramics, mining, metal goods, miscellaneous and all of these employed only 2,250,773 workers.

Led Up to Bolshevik Problem.

This starved, stunted, paralyzed side of Russia—its industrial side—has a direct bearing upon conditions in Russia today and is an important part of the problem of the bolshevik government.

A nation to be economically normal must have balanced agricultural manufacturing and commercial sides. If these three departments of activity are not proportionately developed the nation is economically a cripple. Russia has been and is in this sense an economic cripple. Her body is great and powerful, the physical constitution is strong, one arm, agriculture, is overdeveloped, and its overdevelopment has been at the expense of the oil or arm. Russia, economically, in one physical respect, reminds me of Wilhelm Hohenzollern, late of Prussia, now living in Holland. I refer to his withered, undeveloped baby arm. Russia's undeveloped industrial arm is just such a crippled, useless arm. Reference to the ex-emperor, who is now saving wood in Holland, suggests to my mind the words of a great German economist, List:

"A nation cannot promote and further its civilization, its prosperity and its social progress equally as well by exchanging agricultural products for manufactured goods as by establishing a manufacturing power of its own. A merely agricultural nation can never develop to any extent a home or a foreign commerce, with inland means of transport and foreign navigation. Increase its population in due proportion to their well-being, or make notable progress in its moral, intellectual, social and political development: it will never acquire important political power or be placed in a position to influence the cultivation and progress of less advanced nations and to form colonies of its own. A mere agricultural state is infinitely less powerful than an agricultural-manufacturing state. The former is always economically and politically dependent on those foreign nations which take from it agriculture in exchange for manufactured goods. It cannot determine how much it will produce, it must wait and see how much others will buy from it. The agricultural-manufacturing states on the contrary produce for themselves large quantities of raw materials and provisions and supply merely the deficiency from importation. The purely agricultural nations are thus dependent for the power of effecting sales on the chances of a more or less bountiful harvest in the agricultural-manufacturing nations. They have, moreover, to compete in their sales with other purely agricultural nations, whereby the power of sale in itself is uncertain; they are exposed to the danger of ruin in their trading with agricultural-manufacturing nations by war or new tariffs, whereby they suffer the double disadvantage of finding no buyers for their surplus agricultural products and of failing to obtain supplies of the manufactured goods they require. An agricultural nation is a man with one arm who makes use of an arm belonging to another person but cannot, of course, be sure of having it always available. An agricultural-manufacturing nation is a man who has two good arms of his own at his disposal."

Poland Cited as an Example. List further points out that the relative cultivation of the agricultural and manufacturing arms of a country possessed of an ample and fertile territory will give that country a population twice to three times as large as it could secure by the development of the agricultural arm alone, and maintain this vastly increased population in a much higher degree of comfort. Surplus agricultural produce is not necessarily capital in an agricultural country. Countries which produce such a surplus and remain dependent upon manufacturing countries are often obliged to purchase these manufactured goods at an enhanced price. He points to Poland as an example. She exported the fruits of her soil to obtain the goods which she could have manufactured from it. As a consequence she fell like a house of cards when organized nations attacked her. List considers that had Poland developed her manufacturing arm besides retaining her national independence she would have exceeded any other European country in prosperity. To use List's words: "Go to fallen Poland and ask its hapless people now whether it is advisable for a nation to buy the fabrics of a foreign country so long as its native manufacturers are not sufficiently strengthened to be able to compete in price and quality with the foreigners."

Bolshevism has set out to socialize political, agricultural and industrial Russia, and as I expect to examine the effects of communism in each of these departments of Russian life I have set down some historical and economical truths which must be kept in mind when examining the Leninian panacea. (Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

France Needs Raw Materials. Economic disturbances in France during the period of readjustment of wages to high prices were predicted by Leon Jouhaux, chief labor representative on the French delegation to the International labor conference at Washington. "The lack of raw materials is the only thing that prevents the French workman from going back to his job," said M. Jouhaux.

"We must have cotton and coal from the United States, for it will be from three to five years before the French coal mines can be operated. Of course, wages must go up in France on account of the increased cost of living, and it is probable that before the workman gets this increase there will be more or less economic disturbance."

The American Legion

Here and There Among the World War Veterans

(Copy for This Department Supplied by National Headquarters of the American Legion)

NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS BUILDING OF AMERICAN LEGION

One of Indianapolis' Most Attractive Buildings—Why and How the Hoosier Capital Was Chosen by the World War Men.

WHY DID they locate the national headquarters of the American Legion at Indianapolis?

This is a question that many delegates to the Minneapolis convention of the American Legion are unable to answer. They know that Indianapolis was not one of the three cities reported favorably on by the committee, that a minority report was presented on the floor of the convention, resulting in the election of Indianapolis as permanent headquarters of the organization.

Fred Bates Johnson, an Indianapolis attorney and one of the Hoosier delegates to the convention, was asked how the Indianapolis delegation maneuvered to secure the headquarters. "It was a case of superior salesmanship, as I see it," said Mr. Johnson. "That means, as you know, faith in the superior quality of the product you're trying to sell, a thorough knowledge of the article, and hard work."

"We not only worked hard in trying to convince the members of the committee that Indianapolis was the logical location—we tried to sell the city to every delegate we could talk to. The result was when we found we had lost out in committee, we felt pretty confident we could win by raising the question on the floor of the convention, and we did."

"We had a delegation thoroughly well informed on the advantages the city afforded as a headquarters center. The line of argument was, of course, shaped to fit the particular delegate with whom we were dealing, and all in line with a pre-arranged plan. I'm not saying that the political bent naturally inherent in every Hoosier may not have helped us in winning out over the competing cities."

"Our first argument was that Indianapolis was the ideal convention or headquarters city because it is only sixty miles from the center of population and thus most accessible to the largest number of members. We explained that with fifteen railroads and thirteen electric interurban lines, this greatest inland railway center was easily and directly reached from all parts of the country."

"We showed them how more cities of 30,000 population and over can be reached in a night's ride from Indianapolis than from any other city in the United States, embracing a zone including Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Cincinnati, Louisville, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Memphis, St. Louis, Peoria and Springfield. Over two million people live within two hours' ride of the city and over 60,000,000 can be reached over night."

"We also argued that the fact the city was an ideal headquarters location was evidenced by the number of national headquarters already located here, listing among these the United Mine Workers of America, International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, International Typographical union, International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International union, the Farmers' International union, and the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. This array of labor organizations assured the approval of the thousands of legion members belonging to labor organizations."

"We said we could assure all ex-service men of a most cordial welcome as Indianapolis had always been most appreciative of her heroes. In proof of this, witness the soldiers and sailors' monument which was erected thirty years ago, costing then over $500,000—a monument almost 300 feet in height—and the patriotic manner in which Indiana's sons have answered the call in all previous wars."

"All were surprised to learn that Indianapolis has the most complete electric traction terminal building in the world, where more than 20,000 passengers each day arrive and depart on about 800 high-speed electric interurban cars. The fact that we built the first union railway station in the world also appealed to many."

"We found few knew that Indianapolis was the home city of the late Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks, the home city of Vice President Marshall, the late James Whitcomb Riley and the late Benjamin Harrison; of Booth Tarkington, Meredith Nicholson and other literary men of national note."

"We explained that in addition to our unusual location and railroad facilities, the city was well equipped with many first-class hotels, large auditoriums for conventions, and everything in the way of theaters and motion picture houses that delegates to a convention might require. 5 theaters and 60 motion picture houses."

"The many buildings of interest were also described—a post office occupying a city block and costing more than a half million dollars; a central library, covered at a cost of more than a half million dollars, with fourteen branches and thirty-five other distributing agencies; a state capital occupying two city blocks; a courthouse of unusual architectural beauty, and so on."

"Of course, we heard some listeners, and we had to permit the boosters of other cities to have their say, but, nevertheless, we got across the many advantages offered by this city of 308,000 population. We tried to appeal to the particular interest of the man with whom we were talking."

"Thus, we told the men from farming and rural districts that the principal industry from the value of product is slaughtering and meat packing. That last year 1,294,452 hogs, 268,423 cattle and calves, and 15,593 sheep were killed. They were interested to know that more than 3,300,000 head of live stock were received at Indianapolis stock yards the year before."

"To the same men we told that 6,728,756 bushels of wheat and 21,563,500 bushels of corn were handled by local dealers, and a total of 46,000,000 bushels of grain handled in elevators having a combined capacity of 2,450,000 bushels."

"None of the college men seemed to know that Butler college at Indianapolis was the first college in the country to receive women on equal footing with men. And in the same way we had marshalled facts to interest men of every occupation and interest."

"It venture there was not a delegation to the convention so well informed on what their city had to offer. Certain men were assigned to work with the delegations from the different states. We took with us a motion picture film showing the city, but had not an opportunity to use it."

"But, as I said before, I believe the fact that we landed the G. H. Q. of the legion was due solely to superior salesmanship."

Telephone Rate-Making

THE day of guessing is gone!

Forty years experience has clearly shown that telephone rates must be sufficient to afford a revenue that will pay all expenses, as well as return a reasonable profit to the owners.

The cost of a telephone plant is now accurately known, and so is the life of its various parts. Their replacement is a constant expense.

Our present rates are based on the cost and expense figures of 1911, 1912 and 1913, and they do not measure up to the present day conditions.

They afforded only a small return in those good old days. Today they do not keep "the wheels" of the industry moving.

Rates just the same as before the war will not give satisfactory telephone service to the people of Pennsylvania in these times. They must be made adequate in order to enable us to keep the service up.

Why Measles May Be Dangerous

This is No. 3 of a series of advertisements, prepared by a competent physician, explaining how certain diseases which attack the air passages—such as Pneumonia, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Measles or even a long continued Cold—often leave these organs in an inflamed, congested state, thus affording a favorable foothold for invading germs. And how Vick's Vapo-Rub may be of value in this condition.

Few of us escape measles—it is one of the commonest of childhood diseases. Every mother knows the symptoms, but the mistake that most mothers make is in failing to realize that the child is not fully recovered after the eruption and fever disappear. The air passages are still inflamed and if this inflammation is not cleared up, the air passages may be weakened, thus paving the way for pneumonia or serious disease of the lungs.

Nightly applications of Vick's VapoRub will aid nature in relieving this inflammation. Because Vick's acts locally by stimulation thru the skin to draw out the inflammation, attract the blood away from the congested spots and relieve the cough. In addition, the medicinal ingredients of Vick's are vaporized by the body heat. These vapors are breathed in all night long,

bringing the medication to bear directly upon the inflamed areas.

Children's digestions are delicate—easily disturbed by too much "dosing." Vicks, therefore, is particularly recommended since it is externally applied and so can be used often and freely without the slightest harmful effects.

Vicks should be rubbed in over the throat and chest until the skin is red—then spread over thickly and covered with hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel so the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. If the cough is annoying, swallow a small bit of Vicks the size of a pea.

Samples to new users will be sent free on request to the Vick Chemical Company, 233 Broad Street, Greensboro, N. C.

VACCINATING HENS AGAINST ROUP

HARRISBURG, March 29.—Experiments that may revolutionize the treatment of diseases of chickens in Pennsylvania, through the use of serum injections and vaccination, are being conducted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, on the poultry farm of Guy Leader, of York county. Chicken pox, or roup, in its worst form, appeared in the flocks of blooded birds on the Leader farm and in a short time more than 400 had been killed and egg production was reduced to a minimum.

The owner of the chickens appealed to practically every agency and authority in the state, in an effort to save the remainder of his flock, but the ordinary remedies proved unavailing.

Ten days ago, Mr. Leader sought the aid of Secretary Fred Rasmussen of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. The Secretary at once directed the Bureau of Animal Industry to take charge of the case and Director T. E. Munce and Dr. Fred Boerner, the latter in charge of the Department's Philadelphia laboratory, went to York county.

Twenty-five of the diseased chickens were killed and their heads taken to the Philadelphia laboratory. The diseased membranes in the heads were used as the base for an anti-roup serum and several days later, 750 of the chickens still living at the Leader farm, were vaccinated. The serum was injected in each fowl with a hypodermic needle, much in the same manner that anti-typhoid serum is administered to a person. There were 200 chickens that were not vaccinated, but were left exposed to the disease for observation purposes.

Since that time, experts of the Department of Agriculture have been observing the flock and while it is still too soon to announce definite results, it is believed that the disease has been checked and that practically all the chickens vaccinated will be saved and will in time be immune to further attacks.

It is believed that the work of the State Department of Agriculture is the first of this kind that has been undertaken in this section of the country, and should the results obtained be as satisfactory as anticipated, the information will be generally placed before the poultry breeders of the State.

EVERY FARMER SHOULD TREAT SEED OATS NOW

Pennsylvania produces approximately $35,000,000 bushels of oats annually. The average per cent. of smut in the oats crop for the past 12 years has been 3.8. Rust and other diseases reduce the crop 3 per cent. more, making the loss from disease approximately 2,553,000 bushels each year. Of this amount 1,427,000 bushels is attributed to smut. This means a large loss to the state from a disease which can be prevented by a method which for materials and labor costs only about ten cents per acre.

Experiments have been conducted which will show that oats properly treated with formaldehyde will yield more than the control of the smut alone would indicate. In fact, it is not unusual to secure an increase of from eight to ten per cent. by treating seed oats when the untreated plots show from three to five per cent. of smut. It is evident that the treatment is of considerable value over and above the benefit gained by killing the smut. Every farmer should treat his seed oats this spring. The Farm Bureau will give assistance wherever it is possible.

Dr. C. R. Orton, assistant professor of plant pathology at the Pennsylvania State College, says: "The new 'dry method' of treatment has proven to be just as effective as the old 'wet method.' It consists in mixing one pint of formaldehyde with one pint of water and atomizing the grain with a hand sprayer, as it is being shoveled over a clean floor. One stroke of the atomizer for every scoopful of the grain will give success, if the sprayer is held close to the grain and the mist well distributed. One quart of this solution will treat 50 bushels of seed oats. After treatment, over the oats for four or five hours, no longer. They are now ready to sow immediately, thus eliminating the drying process necessary with the old method."

SLIGHT FIRE ON REED STREET

This morning sparks from a flue burning out on the double dwelling house of Callahan Brothers on Reed street, communicated with the shingle roof of the dwelling owned by Ed. J. Bird, immediately adjoining and soon a blaze, fanned by the strong March wind, was spreading rapidly over the roof.

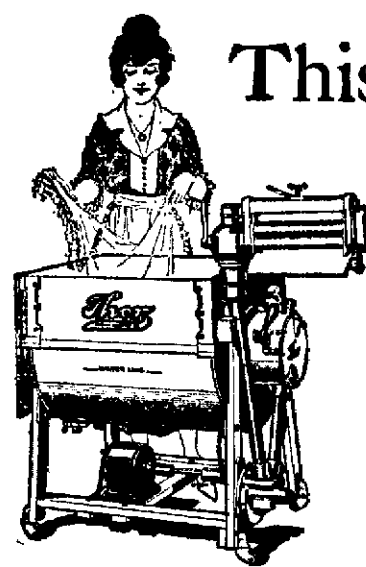

The fire alarm was sounded and the firemen arrived on the scene just in time to assist nearby neighbors in putting the finishing touches to the fire, which caused about $25 damage.

Would Raise . . .

A movement, based on humanitarian considerations, is being initiated for the wider rearing of deer in order to make venison more popular as a diet. It is pointed out that elk and deer may be raised to advantage in forests and on rough, brushy ground unsuited for either agriculture or stock-raising thus utilizing for profit much land that is now waste. One of the noted advantages is that the business is well adapted to landowners of small means.

Hawaii Has 240,000 People.

Hawaii was annexed by the United States in 1898. The islands cover 6,750 square miles. The last United States census of the islands gave a population of about 192,000, and it is believed to be now somewhere in the neighborhood of 240,000. This country imports more than $50,000,000 worth of sugar annually from Hawaii. Powerful wireless stations link up the United States and Japan. Pearl Harbor is one of our most important naval stations.

This is the Wonderful Thor Washing Machine

There are scores of washing machines on the market, some of them are pretty to look at too, but there's only one Thor and it now has the all-metal swinging wringer which cannot be operated until locked in position.

The largest washing machine Company in the world makes the Thor. Fourteen years of patient experimenting has brought about the machine which is now in our storeroom ready for delivery to your home when you tell us you want it.

$10 DOWN

and the balance in easy monthly payments will bring the machine to you before next washday

When you see that quietly revolving white maple cylinder, cleansing every bit of dirt from your clothes, and realize that in two hours you can finish up a week's washing, you will wonder why you didn't invest in a Thor months ago.

Instead of the clumsy tubs and the washboard—a neat cabinet stands in the corner. A great fluffy mass of fine, white soap foam rises and falls and swishes from one side to the other. Your clothes are being washed, thoroughly, silently, quickly. No red hands—no red arms—no backache and no wet feet. Done in two hours at the most. Wonderful! isn't it? And its true.

Phone now, while you are thinking about it or make a note to drop into the store tomorrow and see this wonder-worker which we guarantee.

Itching Eczema Dried Right Up With Sulphur

Any breaking out of the skin, even overcome by applying a little Men-

clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the tor-

LANDED THE MAIN GAZABO

With the arrest in Philadelphia recently of M. Lobell, who is supposed to be the "master mind," but once
removed, in the peccadilloes of
the insurance solicitors who are alleged to have sold Pelican Insurance
company policies through this section, contrary to the insurance laws
of the state, District Attorney Arnold
and the State Insurance Department
feel they are now in a fair way to get some action in a possible "higher
up" or 2 and are carefully preparing their case against the outfit of seven men now behind the bars Fort Gor-
man.

When "Doctor" Zabski and his five
fellow-solicitors were taken into custody some ten days or two weeks ago, Lobell got wind of the haul and
succeeded in getting out of this region pretty quick. He is the man who engineered the deal at this end of the line for selling the alleged fake policies of the Pelican company and now that he is gathered in, the prosecution feels their case is in a fair way
to completion.

Lobell was arrested in Philadelphia
by County Detective Wynne on a warrant left with him by District
Attorney Arnold.

WELL KNOWN BUSINESS MAN DIES

Frank Cimo, the Third street
wholesale produce dealer, died at the Clearfield Hospital at 1 o'clock this morning, after an illness of more than two months' duration, aged
about 37 years.

Mr. Cimo came to Clearfield some six or seven years ago, and engaged in the wholesale fruit business on a small scale. By tireless energy and industry he soon built up a nice business, branching out until he had his own three-story brick building opposite the P. R. station and a rapidly growing trade extending throughout
this section of the county.

Mr. Cimo was one of the representative type of Italian-American citizens and enjoyed the respect and esteem of all who knew him.

He was taken ill some two months
ago and was found to be suffering
from an abscessed liver. He was taken to the hospital and given the very best of attention but the disease had progressed to such an extent that medical skill was of no avail.

He is survived by his widow and two children. The funeral will be held from the St. Francis Catholic church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment in Calvary cemtery.

BURNING HEARTS

"Burning Hearts" in Christian Work. This will be the subject of Dr. J. T. Scott's sermon tonight at the Presbyterian church. The red back song books will be used. Let us all put aside all other evening engagements, for this week and make a go-to-church week out of this. Services every evening at 7:30. Bring your friends and neighbors along. Surely we can give five hours of our time this week to serving God in the church. It only means about five hours if we attend every night of our meetings. TORNADOES SWEEP EIGHT STATES CAUSING MILLIONS IN PROPERTY LOSS: 500 ARE DEAD

GEORGIA, ALABAMA, ILLINOIS, OHIO AND MICHIGAN ARE CHIEF SUFFERERS

SOUTH AND MIDDLE WEST DEVASTATED BY MOST DESTRUCTIVE WINDSTORMS KNOWN IN RECENT YEARS

MILITIA CALLED TO RENDER AID

Tornadoes which swept eight states on Sunday took a toll of approximately 500 lives, destroyed millions of dollars' worth of property and left hundreds of families homeless. The injured are being cared for in temporary buildings. La Grange, Ga., was believed to be the hardest hit by the storm, between 40 and 60 were reported killed there and 300 homeless. West Point, Ga., reported 5 dead and Agricola, Ala., 5 dead. The storm first made its appearance at St. Louis where one was killed. It swept northwest over Ohio, Illinois, Missouri and extended to Wisconsin. Later it reached Michigan. The storm reached the Chicago district near noon just as the crowds were leaving church. Seven were killed at Elston, 7 in Chicago and 14 in Chicago suburbs.

The tornado coming out of the southwest took one life in St. Louis, and swept north to Elgin, Chicago and suburbs. Seven were killed in Chicago and Elgin. Chicago's suburbs Melrose, Maywood, Plainfield and Evanston added fourteen to the death toll. With many cities isolated Michigan reported eight dead today while seventeen were killed in Illinois and one in Wisconsin. Soldiers, reserve militia and former service men today began digging in ruins searching for injured women and children. Work of relief began immediately after the storm and Red Cross workers were sent into the stricken areas.

ATLANTA, GA., March 29—Between fifty and seventy persons were killed and hundreds injured, thousands made homeless and a million dollar property damage was caused by a series of tornadoes which swept parts of Georgia and Alabama late yesterday and last night according to reports received early today. At La Grange, Ga., more than forty were killed, reports said.

CHICAGO, ILL., March 29—Sixty were killed and more than one hundred injured and millions of dollars in property damage was done by a tornado which swept Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, Michigan, Alabama and Indiana yesterday. Indications were that many had been killed in these states. The stricken areas are under martial control, reports today said. Many cities throughout the stricken areas are isolated today. State troops, former service men and home guards were pressed into service yesterday and controlled the cities to protect property.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 29—Between 15 and 25 dead and 100 injured was the estimate placed early today on the loss caused by the tornado which swept the western edge of Ohio yesterday and late last night. Some villages were reported in ruins.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 29—Latest reports from the storm swept districts in Ohio today placed the number of dead at 20. The resumption of communication with the devastated territory it was believed will bring the total higher. Nearly 175 were injured. Property damage was estimated at three million.

CHICAGO, March 29—Heavy loss of life and great property damage was left in the wake of a tornado that swept over Chicago's suburbs today. Reports that filtered in placed the number of dead at 25 and the injured at more than 500. The property damage was estimated from two million to three million dollars. While only partial communication had been established with outlying districts tonight fragmentary details indicated that the storm had swept a belt around Chicago approximately forty miles wide. Towns and villages were left with buildings razed and figures injured. At least ten persons were killed in Melrose Park and Bellwood, where 300 homes were demolished.

The village of Dunning, where the state hospital for the insane is located, reported two dead and 35 injured. Many buildings were wrecked. Wilmet, a suburb in the northeast part of Cook county, reported almost every building razed or damaged. No loss of life was reported. Two companies of militia were sent there to night to guard property and assist the homeless.

Addison Heights a suburb of Chicago, reported five killed and fifty injured. Numerous buildings were carried away including a church.

Elgin, Illinois, some forty miles from Chicago, was cut off from communication early tonight. It was reported six lives had been lost there and a number injured. Doctors and nurses from Chicago were being rushed into the stricken areas early tonight. It was expected many injured would be rushed to Chicago hospitals.

The tornado came from the southwest and a death-like stillness prevailed for a few seconds, then a blast of wind rent buildings asunder and left a mass of wreckage strewn in its wake. The air was filled with flying debris.

Railroad trains speeding through the wreckage were stalled by the force of the wind and strings of box cars were blown from the rails. E. H. Toost, of Oak Park was at Melrose Park when the storm struck

VIRGINIA CHOCOLATE SHOP HAS OPENING

The Virginia Chocolate Shop, which occupies the corner room in the Liberty Theatre building, corner Market and Third streets, was opened to the public for the first time Saturday evening last. The Chocolate Shop is about the nicest place of its kind to be found outside of the larger cities, and we feel safe in saying its equal is not to be found in Central Pennsylvania.

In addition to the hand-omely appointed sales room on the first floor, the cemented basement has been fitted and furnished as a grill or rathskeller, and this feature adds immensely to the general attractiveness of the Chocolate Shop.

Both the store proper and grill are fitted up with booths and tables for the accommodation of patrons. A handsome, up-to-date soda fountain and grill case occupy the east side of the Chocolate Shop proper, while the opposite is lined with pretty glass display stands or cases containing delicious candies. An elevator or dumb waiter is used to supply grill patrons, in fact the arrangement throughout is a model of neatness, convenience and beauty.

The Chocolate Shop was visited by hundreds of people during all of Saturday night. In fact the place was crowded from the time the doors were opened until long after 11 p. m. The Virginia Chocolate Shop, which is under the management and direction of George W. Johnson, is a valuable addition to Clearfield's business life and deserving of success.

INJURED IN PECULIAR ACCIDENT

Miss Hannah Hughes, of South Second street, a passenger on last night's train on the Pennsylvania was not on the back by broken glass, when an obstruction on the wreck rail on the siding beyond Summit station, sidwiped the passenger train and broke some ten or fifteen windows in one side of the ladies' car on the train. She was not seriously injured.

that place. "A series of two story stone buildings, one of them a bank, was flattened as if made of paper," he said. "I saw the mutilated body of a woman being carried from the debris of her home. I don't know how many were killed in all."

Fire followed in the wake of the storm in a number of villages. At Addison Heights Charles Hansen, his wife and their three children were killed when their home was blown away.

E. W. Elms, superintendent of the Sunday schools at Addison Heights, was holding service in the Baptist church. The church was blown away.

"The body of the church was lifted right up and hurled down in a mass of wreckage a few yards away," Mr. Elms said. "The floor remained on the foundations, leaving the congregation seated, without a roof over their heads or walls around them. Three were injured but nobody was killed."

Albert Walling, of Norwood Park, telephoned to Chicago tonight that hundreds of people were homeless and relief must be sent.

"Our people have lost their homes," he said, "and we must have help. The hurricane came so quickly there was no time to prepare. People were buried in the wreckage of their homes. I do not know yet how many were killed or injured."

An electric car on the Aurora & Plainfield railroad was hurled from the track and landed in a field. A number of passengers were injured. Early reports said many had been killed at Joliet although the damage to property was small.

DUBOIS CONTINUES ITS FIRE RECORD

Shortly before one o'clock this morning the large store occupied by Jos. Mikelonis, on South avenue, was completely destroyed by fire, as well as a dwelling house adjoining the store on the west. Two other houses in the immediate vicinity were damaged to some extent. The store was occupied as a grocery store and meat market and was quite a large establishment. The upper floor was occupied by Mr. Mikelonis as a dwelling and his loss is a heavy one, practically nothing being saved. The dwelling adjoining the store was occupied by Anthony Carnitis and his loss is also heavy, although some of the contents were removed before the flames spread.

As is usually the case with fires on the hill, the water pressure was very weak and it was not until the pumper was put in operation that any effective fire fighting could be done.

Some people who were at the scene reasonably early were of the opinion that the fire was of incendiary origin and there is no known reason for its start.—DuBois Courier.

Three houses were destroyed by fire a couple of nights after the disastrous half-million dollar blaze, which swept the business district at DuBois last week.

Meanwhile the firemen are clamoring for needed fire fighting equipment.

The post-office at Coudley was robbed Thursday night last. The post-office is located in the store of Charles Voichet at Frenchville, and the thieves gained entrance by opening the front door with a skeleton key, which was broken off in the lock.

They secured plunder to the amount of about $25 or $30, the loot consisting of about $12.50 in money, several Ingersoll watches and a quantity of cheap rings.

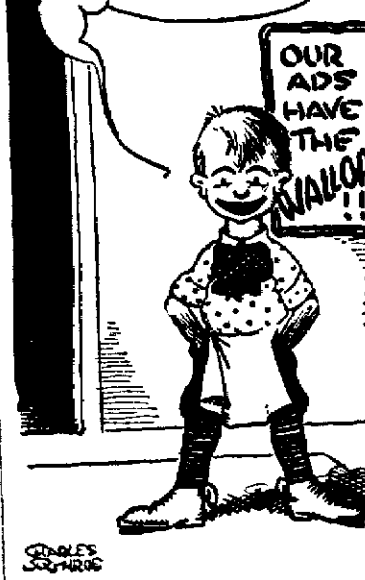

They made no attempt to open the safe in the office, which contained several hundred dollars, with stamps and other valuables.

NAVY RECRUITING OFFICERS HERE

First Class Petty Officers Lutzny and Lavine of the Navy Recruiting Service arrived in town this morning for the purpose of examining and enlisting recruits for the U. S. Navy. They will remain in town until Tuesday morning. Enlistments can be made for 2, 3 or 4 years. Many trade schools are now open to recruits. For further information see Recruiting Officer at Jordan's or at the Post-Office. If it is impossible to see the Recruiting Officer, a letter to the Navy Recruiting Station at Williamsport, Pa., will receive immediate attention.

COMMISSIONER FARRELL COMMENDED

On March 3rd last County Commissioner M. L. Farrell, with a good roads delegation, was on his way to Harrisburg, and while traveling over the main line of the Pennsy below Tyrone, one of the brake rods of the car on which he was riding, broke and dropped to the track. As soon as the noise of the bumping brake rod reached his ear, Mr. Farrell, an old railroad hand, jumped up and seizing the emergency cord, soon had the train stopped and the damage repaired.

He was complimented for his action by the conductor, who noted same in his daily report, and as a result the following letter was sent to Mr. Farrell, a copy of which was also given The Progress for publication by P. R. R. Solicitor J. P. O'Laughlin:

PENNSYLVANIA SYSTEM

PHILADELPHIA
March 23, 1920.

Mr. M. L. Farrell,
County Commissioner,
Clearfield, Pa.

Dear Sir:—The report of the detention of the "Day Express" from Pittsburgh on the afternoon of March 3, near Shoenberger Station, has just reached my desk. In reading over it, I was particularly impressed with that part which referred to the fact that through your prompt efforts the train was brought to a standstill in the face of what might have resulted in a very serious accident.

Your action on this occasion is worthy of the highest praise, and on behalf of the Management of this Railroad, I wish to extend to you our sincere appreciation of your having taken the step you did for the safety, not only of yourself, but also that of the other passengers who were on this train.

We are endeavoring to the best of our ability to provide an efficient and safe transportation service, and it is very encouraging to our operating employees and officers to know that in this they have the hearty co-operation of the patrons of the railroad.

With kindest regards, and trusting to have the pleasure of sometime meeting you and extending to you personally a word of commendation, I am,

Yours very truly,
(Signed) ELISHA LEE,
Vice President.

MRS. J. WARD LOGAN DIES

Mrs. Jane Chase Logan, wife of J. Ward Logan, of Ogden avenue, died at the Clearfield Hospital about 8 o'clock Saturday evening, March 27, 1920, aged about 46 years. Death was due to cancer, from which the deceased had been an uncompromising sufferer for long weary months.

Mrs. Logan was of the finest type of Christian womanhood, a loving and devoted wife and mother, whose every thought was centered in her home and loved ones. When sickness and suffering were visited upon her, she bore her ills with true Christian fortitude and patience. Never complaining regarding her own frailties and sufferings, she was always prompt to minister to others when sickness and distress came to any of those within the circle of her neighborly friendliness. A consistent and devout member of the Catholic church, she faced the life to come uncomplaining and unafraid, fortified by all the satisfying rites of her church.

She is survived by her sorrowing husband and six children. She is also survived by her father, one brother, two half-sisters and three half-brothers, (viz: W. A. Chase, T. H. M. Chase, Mrs. J. K. Palmer, Julian, W. A. Jr., and John M. Chase, all of Clearfield).

The funeral will be held from the St. Francis church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment in Calvary cemetery.

Miss Jessie Sheridan who has been visiting her twin sister Mrs. N. J. Schnarrs nee Bessie Sheridan and her aunt Mrs. Orin Poorman left today for her home in Indiana. Miss Sheridan was accompanied by Miss Margaret Wolf.

BITUMINOUS MINERS TO STAY ON JOB APRIL 1ST

REPRESENTATIVES OF OPERATORS AND MINERS IN WAGE CONFERENCE EXPECT TO AGREE ON SCALE

DEMAND 60 PER CENT INCREASE

NEW YORK, March 29—Instructions will be sent to all miners in the bituminous field to remain on the job after April 1, when the present contract expires, John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America said today.

NEW YORK, March 29—Mine operators and mine workers of the central bituminous district were to meet here today in separate session before the opening of the joint conference. John L. Lewis, International President of the United Mine Workers will head the union representatives in the joint conference which will work out a new contract. The majority recommendations of President Wilson's coal commission will be used as a basis for the negotiations. Both the operators and miners are hopeful of an early settlement. The sub-committee of the hard coal operators and mine workers which has been in session here since March 8, will meet again tomorrow. The demands of the mine workers include a 60 per cent wage increase, a eight hour day, six hour day and a five day week.

ANOTHER IRISH LEADER ASSASSINATED

DUBLIN, March 29—Thomas Dwyer was called from his home at Thurles by an armed posse and shot to death. The circumstances of Dwyer's murder were almost identical with those surrounding the murder of James MacCarthy, Sinn Féin leader, who was shot and killed in his bedroom at Thurles Saturday. Dwyer's murder was believed another proof of the belief here that two rival societies were warring.

REPRESENTATIVES OF ORGANIZED LABOR FORM NON-PARTISAN POLITICAL PARTY

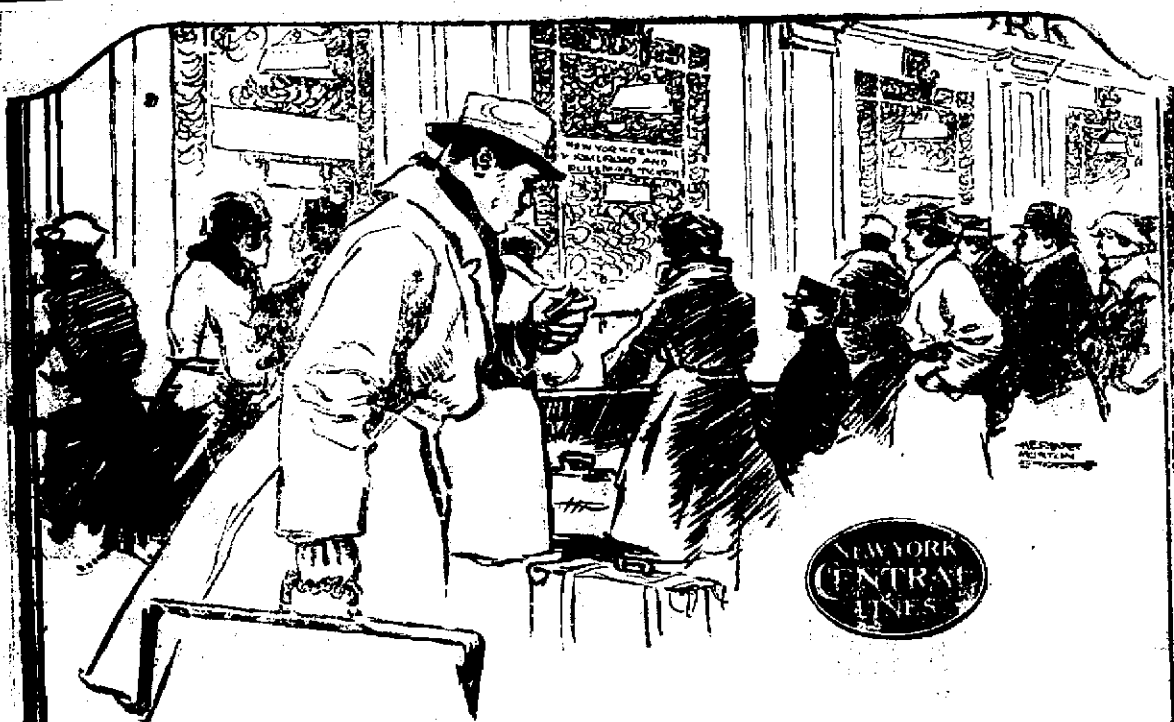

The Clearfield Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee of Clearfield county, was organized at a meeting of the representatives of organized labor held in the assembly hall of The Dimeling yesterday.

This meeting was held by direction of the American Federation of Labor and as the result of a movement of a committee composed of T. J. Butler, J. P. Lennon, J. P. Daugherty, Sam Cook and G. B. Stahl, appointed by the Central Traders and Labor Council of DuBois. The purpose of the organization as expressed in the call for the meeting is "to carry into effect labor's political program for the securing of legislation demanded by labor as their right and to defeat the legislators and other aspirants for public office who have been indifferent or worse to the rights of labor and the best interests of the people generally."

When the meeting was called to order at the Dimeling, by Chairman T. J. Butler, there were present one hundred and twelve delegates representing thirty-six local unions throughout the county, while letters from a score of others endorsing the movement, was in the hands of Secretary Stahl.

Following the reading of the call for the meeting, President John Brophy, of District No. 2, U. M. W. of A., was called upon for an address. Mr. Brophy responded and spoke of the necessity for labor to become united as a non-partisan force if the rights of the man who toils were to be protected at Harrisburg and Washington. He was followed by Richard Gilbert, Secretary of District No. 2, U. M. W. of A., who spoke along similar lines, and mentioned some of the friends and enemies of labor legislation in State and Nation.

It was decided to ask each member of a labor union to contribute 50 cents for the purpose of furthering the activities of the organization. The meeting was devoid of all bluster and rancor, the delegates being earnest, thinking men who expressed themselves as wanting nothing more than even and just justice between man and man. They feel that some of their low ranking representatives in the past have not been fair to labor and do not propose to vote to return them to such places of responsibility if it is possible to get men more friendly to labor or in favor of justice to every class and walk in life in their places.

No Waiting Now At a Second Window

YOU had only a few minutes to catch your train. The long line at the ticket seller's window moved slowly because the clerk had to walk forty or fifty feet every time he got a new ticket. You fretted and fumed for fear you'd miss your train, while visions of another long wait at the Pullman window increased your anxiety. For the first time you realized how important to you was the way in which a railroad company filed its tickets.

That was the old method of selling tickets. We have devised a portable ticket-case which contains all kinds of tickets—local, long-distance, foreign, Pullman—more than 3000 forms in all. It is kept at the clerk's elbow. He never has to leave his window. The line moves fast. You buy your railroad transportation and your Pullman ticket without visiting a second window. Your time is saved and your nerves are spared a strain.

Our traffic manager conceived the idea. Our architect worked it out. The case was first tried at the Grand Central Terminal. Now it is in use at many congested points, and its usefulness is being rapidly extended. This invention has revolutionized the handling of railway tickets. This is one detail of many where constant care and attention to the public's needs enable us to meet them.

Poison Gas In Next War

By M. MOUREAU

(French Chemist and Inventor)
"I cannot say anything about my own works which are connected with the national defence, but I may state that one of the characteristics of the past war, has been the coming of chemistry into the game.

"Should a new war break out, one may presume that it would be still more chemical—essentially chemical—and consequently, much more dangerous even outside the fighting zone.

"When the gas war began and I will never forget this tragic date, April 22, 1915—we have known, by the German chemists, hours of terrible anguish. If France, at that time, had not had a long line of chemists, she probably would have been lost. But we soon did better than the enemy.

"It is certain that the future war would be very scientific, and especially the science of explosives and asphyxiating gas which would be very much developed.

"But the use of chemistry in warfare should not exclusively be considered in making shells and gas. Chemistry has intervened and would still more intervene in all the manifestations of belligerent activities.

"During the last war, the Germans, without their chemists, whose number and value must be acknowledged—there were ten of them against one of us—would not have resisted more than one year. The blockade had rendered impossible for them the imports of Chilean nitrates, no nitrate means no shell. Thanks to their chemists' work, they perfected and industrialized the making of nitric acid synthetically, with azote taken out of the air.

"What has been done from 1914 to 1918 shows what might be done in the event of a new conflict. During that time, we had to improvise everything, but it would be dangerous to play with fire in having the same experience. Further, the best way for us to safeguard peace, is still to be ready for war, a dreadful war!"

Next A Shell War

By PAUL PAINLEVE

(Former French Minister of War)

"I dare hardly consider such a horrible and unlikely hypothesis, although I cannot believe the war has been abolished forever, as the hope has temporarily existed.

"Another way, would differ with the one before, first in the more considerable part played by aviation. It is certain that we should suffer bombardments which would be much bigger, more frequent and causing more evil than in 1918.

"On the other hand, the gas war would be more intense and of a perfection which would be crushing.

"The great innovation would undoubtedly be the use of new shells, about which so many studies have been made throughout the war in all countries. These shells, being almost fired without cannon, and acquiring speed by themselves would have an extraordinary range. What would be necessary, is precision, which will be had within a few years, or a few months, if not immediately.

"Much progress has been made in that direction, and it is easy to conceive what evil these shells could carry with them far away."

Giant Planes In Next War

By M. BECHEREAUX

(Inventor of Airplanes)

"If the menace of a war soon appeared, there would undoubtedly be many people who would take again a sudden interest in aviation and reproach the public powers for the indifference, if not the ingratitude, they have exhibited since the armistice, for the fifth arm.

"Should this menace become effective, and war begin again within a few years, it is likely that the belligerents would dispose of thousands of airplanes, instead of only a few hundreds, and those machines would certainly have a largely increased power.

"The question of price and industrial means limits the number, importance, size and power of airplanes. There is not to consider, in the air, the possibility of jammed traffic, therefore there is no reason except insufficient money that can prevent building machines of 50,000 horsepower and more.

"With a little imagination, one can see what the aerial fights would be on the front, and to the rear the bombardments of strategic points and cities where life would become a permanent anguish.

"There is a large open field for architects who have to foresee the continuance of life in cities exposed to frequent, even continual bombardments. There are many interesting themes for competition, but cellars and underground railroad tunnels will be valueless against the catapault which I beg pardon to bring up.

"We must keep a close eye on our neighbor who may have sporting airplanes which could be easily turned into chasing airplanes, and commercial airplanes that look like brothers of bombing airplanes.

"Let us remember too, that improvements, in aviation, are the result of lengthy, patient and costly studies, and every country will have, when the time comes, the aviation that it made itself or that the public opinion will have demanded."

Eccentricities

Paul Verlaine, a French poet, was a gentle man. He was passed in alternate periods of religious ecstasy and deplorable depression. After 1870 he led the traditional Bohemian life in Paris, then abandoned for eleven years. In 1881 he returned to the public eye as a poet in battle with his "Sagesse" (wisdom) for his last work. From this time to his death in 1896 Verlaine remained a poet, for brief intervals, in the states of the Latin quarter, and once absolute, courting and being loved and journalistic articles.

If Back Hurts Begin On Salts

Flush the Kidneys at once when Backache or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of stinging, get about four ounces of Jael Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined

"An artist stands beside the New Edison and sings—or plays. Suddenly, and without warning, the artist ceases and the New Edison continues alone. The test is whether the audience, with eyes closed, can tell when the living artist has ceased to sing—or to play. Where practicable, the lights are turned off suddenly and the artist steals from the stage, leaving the New Edison to perform its miraculous feat of Re-Creation the singer's voice—or instrumentalist's performance—with such perfect realism that the audience is not aware of the artist's departure until the lights are turned on."

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

Let the talking-machines vie with one another in glittering generalities. Edison deals with facts alone:

1. The New Edison has sustained 4000 "Tone-Tests."
2. 50 different artists (both vocalists and instrumentalists) made these tests.
3. 4000 different New Edisons (all Laboratory Models out of regular stock) were used in the tests.
4. 3 million people heard these tests.

5. 500 of America's leading newspapers published the results.

6. Everyone has admitted that the human ear cannot distinguish between an artist's voice and the New Edison's Re-Creation of such voice.

You have something mighty tangible in this proof by the New Edison.

When 3 million people hear, consider and agree, you have a fact as firmly established as any scientific law.

You will be interested to know that we have a plan whereby you can arrange your own payments for your New Edison.

Americanism

By
LEONARD WOOD

Interwoven as is the love of liberty with every ligament of your hearts, no recommendation of mine is necessary to fortify or confirm your attachment.—George Washington: Farewell Address.

GEORGE WASHINGTON took it for granted that the love of liberty was so strong in the hearts of his countrymen that it could not be uprooted. He took it so much for granted that he said that no recommendation of his was necessary to confirm their attachment.

Washington was speaking to all his fellow countrymen. He took no thought with individuals, here, there or elsewhere. There was no one in whose heart the love of liberty was not firmly implanted. It must have been grateful to the first president to be able to believe that his audience of Americans was as one person in patriotic impulse and in affection for the land of his birth or his adoption. Today it still should be taken for granted that all Americans love liberty and are willing to sacrifice their all for its continuance.

As a group of people Americans are sound to the core in their Americanism. They love liberty today as well as they did in the days of Washington, and they are just as ready to make the sacrifices necessary to maintain it. While Washington did not allow himself even by inference to make it appear that he thought anywhere there might be a break in the line of liberty lovers, he probably knew that even in his day there were Americans who thought that liberty meant license, and that restraint of personal conduct had no place in a republic.

There were such persons in the republic in Washington's day, and they have had a place in the country's life during the terms of every president since Washington. They are with us today, some of them born here and some of them born elsewhere, but all with a feeling based on selfishness, for there is no belief in it, that unbridled freedom should be the lot of every man and woman living under democratic institutions.

It is from the ranks of such men as these that are recruited the preachers of unrest, the inciters to violence and the actual partakers of violent deeds. Law and order, the Constitution, regard for property rights, and other things sacred to true Americans, have no place in the creed of such as these.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with coated tongue, foul breath or a dull headache; or if your meals sour and ferment, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

Tomorrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to headaches, backaches, bilious attacks, constipation or stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning inside bath.

Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

No preaching services were held in the Methodist church Sunday. On Saturday Rev. Fletcher Biddle was taken suddenly ill and his condition was such that he was unable to deliver his farewell sermon to the congregation to whom he had administered for the year past. The best wishes of many friends will accompany him to his new charge at Reno. The newly appointed minister, the Rev. J. C. Collins, of Clearfield, is expected to arrive some day during the week and his congregation will be on hand to give him the warm hand-shake of fellowship.

Bethesda Lodge No. 821, I. O. O. F., elected officers on Saturday evening to serve during the ensuing term: Noble Grand Charles F. Young; vice-grand, Eli M. Korb; secretary, Harry S. Brown; treasurer, John A. Dale; trustee, C. S. Russell. The reports for the past six months showed an increase of membership and despite the unusual amount of sickness by members during the winter, left the lodge in tip-top shape financially.

John Cadman returned home on Saturday from a two weeks sojourn in the city of Erie, where he had been serving as a United States jurymen.

Boy Scouts to the number of about twenty indulged in their first mountain hike on Saturday. They went out to the hard clay mines taking provisions along with which to cook their supper in true scout style. They enjoyed their trip immensely and brought home as fruits of their journey bunches of sassafras.

The Pythian Order in Curwensville has stood many years for the highest ideals in American citizenship, patriotic devotion to the country and loyalty to the civil welfare of the community. During the years that the Pythias lodge has been operated in this town, its Castle Hall has been the meeting place of men inspired to perform a service for their fellowmen and to aid in all that would tend toward the development of a well regulated community.

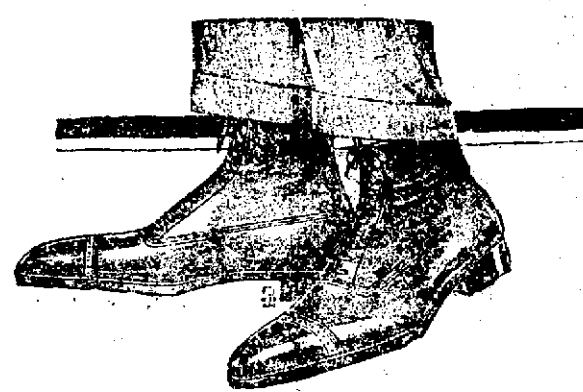

To be a Pythian in Curwensville means that you are alive to the social welfare of the community, loyal to the community, that you are loyal to the fraternal conception of life and that you have enlisted in the cause of the development of brotherhood and fraternal fellowship of men. Perhaps no other fraternal society has performed a greater service to the community than has the Knights of Pythias during the last few years. A number greater than 720,000 men of the United States and Canada are members of the order. More than 60,000 young men of the order crossed the seas or were ready for embarkation when the armistice was signed. The Pythian order was the first to write into its ritual the flag ceremony; it was the first American fraternity to enforce the sale of rituals printed in English; it was the first to disbar from the membership men engaged in the liquor traffic. It has made war on all things not safe and sane and does everything possible for making the world better and brighter for mankind. The war record of the members of this order is second to none. Besides sending a large number of members into the service, those who remained at home, aided by their wives, mothers and sisters, contributed much to building up the morale of the community and in supplying the needs of the government at a time when the service of every citizen was demanded. The order has several auxiliaries connected with it one of which is the Uniform Rank which gave 10,000 men and officers in the world war; the Knights of Khorassan, the "playground of Pythianism"; and the Pythian Sisters with over 200,000 members, whose war record and altruistic work has made the organization one of the most effective women's fraternities in America. In this spirit has the order been moulded. In every relation and from every viewpoint, Pythianism is practical, elevating and consistently progressive.

County Commissioner Clerk Norris was a Sunday visitor to Curwensville, spending the time with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Norris.

It is said that another movie picture show will locate in Curwensville within the next few weeks, locating near the centre of the town if convenient quarters can be secured.

Rev. Bertram Conley, after an illness of several weeks, was able to occupy his pulpit in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening.

Members of the New York legislature are preparing for more trouble than even Russia has at the present time. They propose to amend the constitution to prevent the election of socialists to any state office, a proposition that is unconstitutional and contrary to the ethics of the American form of government. The proposition is entirely un-American, and, hence, totally wrong. The same principle might be applied to Republicans or Democrats.

The errors of socialism lie in affiliation with foreign or domestic organizations that have for their object the overthrow of existing governments by force if necessary, and in adopting such ideas, with a view to their execution, they become enemies of the government and the people. Wise, just and equitable laws and an honest administration of government will accomplish more than force in the destruction of socialism.

The women of the entire world are clamoring for recognition of their rights as equal partners with men in the administration of government. They insist upon exercising the right of suffrage, and states and nations are yielding to their demands. In America, 35 states have ratified the Women Suffrage amendment to the federal constitution. Only one more is needed to emancipate the women, and, as the fight narrows down to an almost certainty that the women will carry their point the fight becomes more vigorous, the resistance stronger and the status of the cause of the women of America more critical, but they have a fighting chance, and they are putting forth every ounce of feminine energy to win what should have been granted to them years ago without a struggle.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the American National Woman's Suffrage Association will attend the Woman's Suffrage Alliance in Geneva, Switzerland, in June representing 20,000,000 members in this country.

The lofty idea to be considered there, among the Alps, is suffrage for all women of the world.

Capital and big business interests entered the realm of politics long before organized labor became a power. With shame we all admit that there have been periods in our history when our state legislature and our national congress has been dominated entirely, not simply by financial interests, but rather by one or more great corporations. Every man who has lived during the last twenty five years can recall these unfortunate conditions. Even today it is a fact that certain legislators are at Harrisburg through the manipulation of corporate interests and that our national congress is harboring within its doors men who owe a greater allegiance to big interests than to the people generally. Out of such conditions there are certain to grow remedial agencies. A corporate balance of power in our legislative bodies is just as dangerous as a labor balance of power. It is true that labor has its representatives in our legislative halls today but the representation is small and those who are there are unhappily of the bombast variety. A labor party would create a long line of radicals. The A. F. of L., in its desire to win for labor a greater representation on the legislative floor has acted wisely in voting down the idea of a third party and entering the field on a nonpartisan basis. They will accomplish more in the end as their influence will be a balancing factor in the conduct of party affairs as well as in the acts of office holders. No one can deny the right of organized labor to participate in our government in this manner as it is a privilege which has long been enjoyed by capital. Whether or not their efforts will be successful depends much upon the wisdom with which they endorse candidates. All too often a man is blackballed by labor without full consideration of all facts involved. In many instances the endorsement is given to the man of radical views and words but who cannot accomplish anything. If the present Clearfield county organization will wisely consider each candidate and judiciously make their selections it can become a tremendous factor in Clearfield county politics.

RUSSIA OUT OF BALANCE

That Its Industrial Life Has Not Kept Pace With Its Agricultural Has Been Fatal to Country's Prosperity.

Article XVIII.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

Less than 10 per cent of the people of Russia "permanently" live in cities or towns. I write the word "permanently" to call attention to the fact that a number of peasants and villagers come to the cities and towns to work for a part of the year in the industries. They retain their peasant status and their dwellings in the villages. In 1910 there were only forty cities in the Russian empire with a population of from 50,000 to 100,000; only four cities with a population of over 100,000.

Poverty forced upon the Russian people the co-operative spirit. In a great, long strain people can stand up together better than alone. It is the idea of consolation in companionship. It is a principle of mass psychology that a group of men will dare to do a thing to stand a suffering or a danger that no individual in the crowd would undertake alone. The Russians have suffered from the dawn of history, and one of the oldest institutions of Russian life is the Artel. The Artel very much resembles the co-operative society of western Europe, with this difference, that the co-operative society in Europe and America is the outgrowth of an economic trend. In Russia it was the unpremeditated result of necessity. It is the difference between one who is hungry because he is dieting and one who is starving because he is without food.

The workers of Russia have suffered the same slavery the peasants have endured. The minimum wage has been a starvation pay. So when the working men from a province come to a city to work in the textile industries or as carpenters, masons, etc., they are sent into groups of from ten to fifty persons, rent a house, keep a common table, elect an elder of the Artel, to whom each one pays his share of the expense. All over Russia one finds the Artel—in the cities, in the lumber camps, even in the prisons. When a building is to be put up an Artel is organized. When a railroad is being built an Artel is formed. In some instances the Artel resembles a labor union, in that the arrangement of the terms of employment is made by a delegate or committee appointed by the Artel.

Live in Squalor and Misery.

Village life is primitive. The villagers live out of the world. The villages are very small, particularly in the extreme north. The houses are generally cheap wooden shanties. Owing to the great danger of fire, the villages generally cover a large area of ground. The houses are scattered and struggling. The conveniences found even in the American tenements are unknown. There is no chance for cleanliness. They live and sleep in crowded, smoky, unfinished houses. Furniture—they haven't what we call furniture, even what the poorest farm tenant in America would call furnishings. A board for a table, a shakedown for a bed.

Russia's industrial life has always been out of balance with her agricultural life. Notwithstanding her riches of raw material and her great possibilities for a successful industrial life, Russia has continued to be a nation with 81 per cent farmers, 7 or 8 per cent permanently engaged in industry, and 3 or 4 per cent of peasants who devoted part of the time to work in the industries. It has been said repeatedly that the Imperial Russian government from the time of Peter the Great has been unceasing in its efforts for the creation and development of these manufactures. All of the evidence I have examined refutes this statement. There never has been any security to the worker in Russia. The only protection he has had has been his interest in the family allotment. He could go back there and be hungry; in the city starvation was the danger.

The czar put every obstacle in the way of education and of course this prevented the growth of industry.

In 1902 the principal industries in Russia, representing all of the factories throughout the empire of which the annual production was valued at more than $1,000, were textiles, food products, animal products, wood, paper, chemical products, ceramics, mining, metal goods, miscellaneous and all of these employed only 2,250,773 workers.

Led Up to Bolshevik Problem.

This starved, stunted, paralyzed side of Russia—its industrial side—has a direct bearing upon conditions in Russia today and is an important part of the problem of the bolshevik government.

A nation to be economically normal must have balanced agricultural manufacturing and commercial sides. If these three departments of activity are not proportionately developed the nation is economically a cripple. Russia has been and is in this sense an economic cripple. Her body is great and powerful, the physical constitution is strong, one arm, agriculture, is overdeveloped, and its overdevelopment has been at the expense of the oil or arm. Russia, economically, in one physical respect, reminds me of Wilhelm Hohenzollern, late of Prussia, now living in Holland. I refer to his withered, undeveloped baby arm. Russia's undeveloped industrial arm is just such a crippled, useless arm. Reference to the ex-emperor, who is now sawing wood in Holland, suggests to my mind the words of a great German economist, List:

"A nation cannot promote and further its civilization, its prosperity and its social progress equally as well by exchanging agricultural products for manufactured goods as by establishing a manufacturing power of its own. A merely agricultural nation can never develop to any extent a home or a foreign commerce, with inland means of transport and foreign navigation. Increase its population in due proportion to their well-being, or make notable progress in its moral, intellectual, social and political development: it will never acquire important political power or be placed in a position to influence the cultivation and progress of less advanced nations and to form colonies of its own. A mere agricultural state is infinitely less powerful than an agricultural-manufacturing state. The former is always economically and politically dependent on those foreign nations which take from it agriculture in exchange for manufactured goods. It cannot determine how much it will produce, it must wait and see how much others will buy from it. The agricultural-manufacturing states on the contrary produce for themselves large quantities of raw materials and provisions and supply merely the deficiency from importation. The purely agricultural nations are thus dependent for the power of effecting sales on the chances of a more or less bountiful harvest in the agricultural-manufacturing nations. They have, moreover, to compete in their sales with other purely agricultural nations, whereby the power of sale in itself is uncertain; they are exposed to the danger of ruin in their trading with agricultural-manufacturing nations by war or new tariffs, whereby they suffer the double disadvantage of finding no buyers for their surplus agricultural products and of failing to obtain supplies of the manufactured goods they require. An agricultural nation is a man with one arm who makes use of an arm belonging to another person but cannot, of course, be sure of having it always available. An agricultural-manufacturing nation is a man who has two good arms of his own at his disposal."

Poland Cited as an Example.
List further points out that the relative cultivation of the agricultural and manufacturing arms of a country possessed of an ample and fertile territory will give that country a population twice to three times as large as it could secure by the development of the agricultural arm alone, and maintain this vastly increased population in a much higher degree of comfort. Surplus agricultural produce is not necessarily capital in an agricultural country. Countries which produce such a surplus and remain dependent upon manufacturing countries are often obliged to purchase these manufactured goods at an enhanced price. He points to Poland as an example. She exported the fruits of her soil to obtain the goods which she could have manufactured from it. As a consequence she fell like a house of cards when organized nations attacked her. List considers that had Poland developed her manufacturing arm besides retaining her national independence she would have exceeded any other European country in prosperity. To use List's words: "Go to fallen Poland and ask its hapless people now whether it is advisable for a nation to buy the fabrics of a foreign country so long as its native manufacturers are not sufficiently strengthened to be able to compete in price and quality with the foreigners."

Bolshevism has set out to socialize political, agricultural and industrial Russia, and as I expect to examine the effects of communism in each of these departments of Russian life I have set down some historical and economical truths which must be kept in mind when examining the Leninian program. (Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

France Needs Raw Materials.
Economic disturbances in France during the period of readjustment of wages to high prices were predicted by Leon Jouhaux, chief labor representative on the French delegation to the International labor conference at Washington. "The lack of raw materials is the only thing that prevents the French workman from going back to his job," said M. Jouhaux.

"We must have cotton and coal from the United States, for it will be from three to five years before the French coal mines can be operated. Of course, wages must go up in France on account of the increased cost of living, and it is probable that before the workman gets this increase there will be more or less economic disturbance."

The American Legion

Here and There Among the World War Veterans

(Copy for This Department Supplied by National Headquarters of the American Legion)

NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS BUILDING OF AMERICAN LEGION

One of Indianapolis' Most Attractive Buildings—Why and How the Hoosier Capital Was Chosen by the World War Men.

WHY DID they locate the national headquarters of the American Legion at Indianapolis?

This is a question that many delegates to the Minneapolis convention of the American Legion are unable to answer. They know that Indianapolis was not one of the three cities reported favorably on by the committee, that a minority report was presented on the floor of the convention, resulting in the election of Indianapolis as permanent headquarters of the organization.

Fred Bates Johnson, an Indianapolis attorney and one of the Hoosier delegates to the convention, was asked how the Indianapolis delegation maneuvered to secure the headquarters. "It was a case of superior salesmanship, as I see it," said Mr. Johnson. "That means, as you know, faith in the superior quality of the product you're trying to sell, a thorough knowledge of the article, and hard work."

"We not only worked hard in trying to convince the members of the committee that Indianapolis was the logical location—we tried to sell the city to every delegate we could talk to. The result was when we found we had lost out in committee, we felt pretty confident we could win by raising the question on the floor of the convention, and we did."

"We had a delegation thoroughly well informed on the advantages the city afforded as a headquarters center. The line of argument was, of course, shaped to fit the particular delegate with whom we were dealing, and all in line with a pre-arranged plan. I'm not saying that the political bent naturally inherent in every Hoosier may not have helped us in winning out over the competing cities."

"Our first argument was that Indianapolis was the ideal convention or headquarters city because it is only sixty miles from the center of population and thus most accessible to the largest number of members. We explained that with fifteen railroads and thirteen electric interurban lines, this greatest inland railway center was easily and directly reached from all parts of the country."

"We showed them how more cities of 30,000 population and over can be reached in a night's ride from Indianapolis than from any other city in the United States, embracing a zone including Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Cincinnati, Louisville, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Memphis, St. Louis, Peoria and Springfield. Over two million people live within two hours' ride of the city and over 60,000,000 can be reached over night."

"We also argued that the fact the city was an ideal headquarters location was evidenced by the number of national headquarters already located here, listing among these the United Mine Workers of America, International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, International Typographical union, International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International union, the Farmers' International union, and the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. This array of labor organizations assured the approval of the thousands of legion members belonging to labor organizations."

"We said we could assure all ex-service men of a most cordial welcome as Indianapolis had always been most

appreciative of her heroes. In proof of this, witness the soldiers and sailors' monument which was erected thirty years ago, costing then over $500,000—a monument almost 300 feet in height—and the patriotic manner in which Indiana's sons have answered the call in all previous wars.

"All were surprised to learn that Indianapolis has the most complete electric traction terminal building in the world, where more than 20,000 passengers each day arrive and depart on about 800 high-speed electric interurban cars. The fact that we built the first union railway station in the world also appealed to many."

"We found few knew that Indianapolis was the home city of the late Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks, the home city of Vice President Marshall, the late James Whitcomb Riley and the late Benjamin Harrison; of Booth Tarkington, Meredith Nicholson and other literary men of national note."

"We explained that in addition to our unusual location and railroad facilities, the city was well equipped with many first-class hotels, large auditoriums for conventions, and everything in the way of theaters and motion picture houses that delegates to a convention might require. 5 theaters and 60 motion picture houses."

"The many buildings of interest were also described—a post office occupying a city block and costing more than a half million dollars; a central library, covered at a cost of more than a half million dollars, with fourteen branches and thirty-five other distributing agencies; a state capital occupying two city blocks; a courthouse of unusual architectural beauty, and so on."

"Of course, we heard some listeners, and we had to permit the boosters of other cities to have their say, but, nevertheless, we got across the many advantages offered by this city of 308,000 population. We tried to appeal to the particular interest of the man with whom we were talking."

"Thus, we told the men from farming and rural districts that the principal industry from the value of product is slaughtering and meat packing. That last year 1,294,452 hogs, 268,423 cattle and calves, and 15,593 sheep were killed. They were interested to know that more than 3,300,000 head of live stock were received at Indianapolis stock yards the year before."

"To the same men we told that 6,728,756 bushels of wheat and 21,593,500 bushels of corn were handled by local dealers, and a total of 46,000,000 bushels of grain handled in elevators having a combined capacity of 2,450,000 bushels."

"None of the college men seemed to know that Butler college at Indianapolis was the first college in the country to receive women on equal footing with men. And in the same way we had marshalled facts to interest men of every occupation and interest."

"It venture there was not a delegation to the convention so well informed on what their city had to offer. Certain men were assigned to work with the delegations from the different states. We took with us a motion picture film showing the city, but had not an opportunity to use it."

"But, as I said before, I believe the fact that we landed the G. H. Q. of the legion was due solely to superior salesmanship."

Telephone Rate-Making

THE day of guessing is gone!

Forty years experience has clearly shown that telephone rates must be sufficient to afford a revenue that will pay all expenses, as well as return a reasonable profit to the owners.

The cost of a telephone plant is now accurately known, and so is the life of its various parts. Their replacement is a constant expense.

Our present rates are based on the cost and expense figures of 1911, 1912 and 1913, and they do not measure up to the present day conditions.

They afforded only a small return in those good old days. Today they do not keep "the wheels" of the industry moving.

Rates just the same as before the war will not give satisfactory telephone service to the people of Pennsylvania in these times. They must be made adequate in order to enable us to keep the service up.

Why Measles May Be Dangerous

This is No. 3 of a series of advertisements, prepared by a competent physician, explaining how certain diseases which attack the air passages—such as Pneumonia, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Measles or even a long continued Cold—often leave these organs in an inflamed, congested state, thus affording a favorable foothold for invading germs. And how Vick's Vapo-Rub may be of value in this condition.

Few of us escape measles—it is one of the commonest of childhood diseases. Every mother knows the symptoms, but the mistake that most mothers make is in failing to realize that the child is not fully recovered after the eruption and fever disappear. The air passages are still inflamed and if this inflammation is not cleared up, the air passages may be weakened, thus paving the way for pneumonia or serious disease of the lungs.

Nightly applications of Vick's Vapo-Rub will aid nature in relieving this inflammation. Because Vick's acts locally by stimulation thru the skin to draw out the inflammation, attract the blood away from the congested spots and relieve the cough. In addition, the medicinal ingredients of Vick's are vaporized by the body heat. These vapors are breathed in all night long,

bringing the medication to bear directly upon the inflamed areas.

Children's digestions are delicate—easily disturbed by too much "dosing." Vicks, therefore, is particularly recommended since it is externally applied and so can be used often and freely without the slightest harmful effects.

Vicks should be rubbed in over the throat and chest until the skin is red—then spread or thickly and covered with hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel so the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. If the cough is annoying, swallow a small bit of Vicks the size of a pea.

Samples to new users will be sent free on request to the Vick Chemical Company, 233 Broad Street, Greensboro, N. C.

DECISION ON PROHIBITION AMENDMENT APRIL 19

WASHINGTON, March 29—A Supreme Court decision on the validity of constitutional prohibition is looked for April 19, Chief Justice White today stated the court would recess until that date. It was considered likely that a final decision would then be made.

DELAWARE LEGISLATURE TO VOTE ON SUFFRAGE WEDNESDAY

DOVER, DEL. March 29—The fight on the resolution ratifying the federal woman's suffrage amendment was resumed in the State Legislature today. A vote on the resolution was scheduled for Wednesday. The suffragists were confident that they would be able to place Delaware in the list of states ratifying the amendment. A council of Republican legislators was held today to discuss the suffrage amendment.

VACCINATING HENS AGAINST ROUP

HARRISBURG, March 29.—Experiments that may revolutionize the treatment of diseases of chickens in Pennsylvania, through the use of serum injections and vaccination, are being conducted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, on the poultry farm of Guy Leader, of York county. Chicken pox, or roup, in its worst form, appeared in the flocks of blooded birds on the Leader farm and in a short time more than 400 had been killed and egg production was reduced to a minimum.

The owner of the chickens appealed to practically every agency and authority in the state, in an effort to save the remainder of his flock, but the ordinary remedies proved unavailing.

Ten days ago, Mr. Leader sought the aid of Secretary Fred Rasmussen of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. The Secretary at once directed the Bureau of Animal Industry to take charge of the case and Director T. E. Munce and Dr. Fred Boerner, the latter in charge of the Department's Philadelphia laboratory, went to York county.

Twenty-five of the diseased chickens were killed and their heads taken to the Philadelphia laboratory. The diseased membranes in the heads were used as the base for an anti-roup serum and several days later, 750 of the chickens still living at the Leader farm, were vaccinated. The serum was injected in each fowl with a hypodermic needle, much in the same manner that anti-typhoid serum is administered to a person. There were 200 chickens that were not vaccinated, but were left exposed to the disease for observation purposes.

Since that time, experts of the Department of Agriculture have been observing the flock and while it is still too soon to announce definite results, it is believed that the disease has been checked and that practically all the chickens vaccinated will be saved and will in time be immune to further attacks.

It is believed that the work of the State Department of Agriculture is the first of this kind that has been undertaken in this section of the country, and should the results obtained be as satisfactory as anticipated, the information will be generally placed before the poultry breeders of the State.

EVERY FARMER SHOULD TREAT SEED OATS NOW

Pennsylvania produces approximately $35,000,000 bushels of oats annually. The average per cent. of smut in the oats crop for the past 12 years has been 3.8. Rust and other diseases reduce the crop 3 per cent. more, making the loss from disease approximately 2,553,000 bushels each year. Of this amount 1,427,000 bushels is attributed to smut. This means a large loss to the state from a disease which can be prevented by a method which for materials and labor costs only about ten cents per acre.

Experiments have been conducted which will show that oats properly treated with formaldehyde will yield more than the control of the smut alone would indicate. In fact, it is not unusual to secure an increase of from eight to ten per cent. by treating seed oats when the untreated plots show from three to five per cent. of smut. It is evident that the treatment is of considerable value over and above the benefit gained by killing the smut. Every farmer should treat his seed oats this spring. The Farm Bureau will give assistance wherever it is possible.

Dr. C. R. Orton, assistant professor of plant pathology at the Pennsylvania State College, says: "The new 'dry method' of treatment has proven to be just as effective as the old 'wet method.' It consists in mixing one pint of formaldehyde with one pint of water and atomizing the grain with a hand sprayer, as it is being shoveled over a clean floor. One stroke of the atomizer for every scoopful of the grain will give success, if the sprayer is held close to the grain and the mist well distributed. One quart of this solution will treat 50 bushels of seed oats. After treatment, over the oats for four or five hours, no longer. They are now ready to sow immediately, thus eliminating the drying process necessary with the old method."

SLIGHT FIRE ON REED STREET

This morning sparks from a flue burning out on the double dwelling house of Callahan Brothers on Reed street, communicated with the shingle roof of the dwelling owned by Ed. J. Bird, immediately adjoining and soon a blaze, fanned by the strong March wind, was spreading rapidly over the roof.

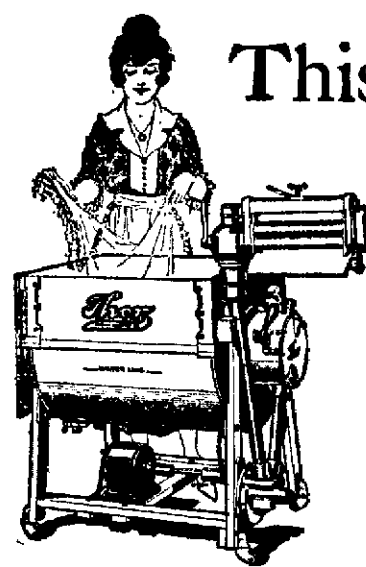

The fire alarm was sounded and the firemen arrived on the scene just in time to assist nearby neighbors in putting the finishing touches to the fire, which caused about $25 damage.

Would Raise . . .

A movement, based on humanitarian considerations, is being initiated for the wider rearing of deer in order to make venison more popular as a diet. It is pointed out that elk and deer may be raised to advantage in forests and on rough, brushy ground unsuited for either agriculture or stock-raising thus utilizing for profit much land that is now waste. One of the noted advantages is that the business is well adapted to landowners of small means.

Hawaii Has 240,000 People.

Hawaii was annexed by the United States in 1898. The islands cover 6,750 square miles. The last United States census of the islands gave a population of about 192,000, and it is believed to be now somewhere in the neighborhood of 240,000. This country imports more than $50,000,000 worth of sugar annually from Hawaii. Powerful wireless stations link up the United States and Japan. LANDED THE MAIN GAZABO

With the arrest in Philadelphia recently of M. Lobell, who is supposed to be the "master mind," but once
removed, in the peccadilloes of
the insurance solicitors who are alleged to have sold Pelican Insurance
company policies through this section, contrary to the insurance laws
of the state, District Attorney Arnold
and the State Insurance Department
feel they are now in a fair way to get some action in a possible "higher
up" or 2 and are carefully preparing
their case against the outfit of seven
men now behind the bars Fort Gor-
man.

When "Doctor" Zabski and his five
fellow-solicitors were taken into custody some ten days or two weeks
ago, Lobell got wind of the haul and
succeeded in getting out of this region pretty quick. He is the man who engineered the deal at this end of the line for selling the alleged fake policies of the Pelican company and now
that he is gathered in, the prosecution feels their case is in a fair way
to completion.

Lobell was arrested in Philadelphia
by County Detective Wynne on a
warrant left with him by District
Attorney Arnold.

WELL KNOWN BUSINESS MAN DIES

Frank Cimo, the Third street
wholesale produce dealer, died at the Clearfield Hospital at 1 o'clock this morning, after an illness of more
than two months' duration, aged
about 37 years.

Mr. Cimo came to Clearfield some
six or seven years ago, and engaged
in the wholesale fruit business on a small scale. By tireless energy and
industry he soon built up a nice business, branching out until he had his
own three-story brick building opposite the P. R. station and a rapidly growing trade extending throughout
this section of the county.

Mr. Cimo was one of the representative type of Italian-American citizens and enjoyed the respect and esteem of all who knew him.

He was taken ill some two months
ago and was found to be suffering
from an abscessed liver. He was taken to the hospital and given the very
best of attention but the disease had
progressed to such an extent that
medical skill was of no avail.

He is survived by his widow and
two children. The funeral will be held from the St. Francis Catholic church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment in Calvary cem-
tery.

"Burning Hearts" in Christian Work. This will be the subject of Dr. J. T. Scott's sermon tonight at the Presbyterian church. The red back song books will be used. Let us all put aside all other evening engagements, for this week and make a go-to-church week out of this. Services every evening at 7:30. Bring your friends and neighbors along. Surely we can give five hours of our time this week to serving God in the church. It only means about five hours if we attend every night of our meetings. Think it over, pray it over and come over and help the Session and Dr. Scott make a big success of these meetings. Dr. Scott is a wonderful talker and you will be pleased with him. We will look for you.
